BIO

Nyah Ariel Funderburke is mission driven, a scholar student-athlete at The Ohio State University. A three-sport star athlete and honor student at Columbus School for Girls, an elite private school in Central Ohio with a leadership focus, she is a young woman with immense potential and immeasurable purpose. "Polished" is the attribute most often ascribed to Nyah. Reared in a home with two loving parents who helped shape her value proposition and vision parameters, she exudes confidence, stately elegance, and refined humility. Her father, Lawrence Funderburke, played basketball at Ohio State and in the NBA. Both of her parents are Buckeye graduates and dedicated philanthropists. Nyah is well-versed in community engagement, with years of tutelage in bridging the opportunity gap in America through holistic measures.
